1. Background

Sea Cage and offshore aquaculture are playing an increasingly important role in ensuring sustainable aquatic food production and environmental stewardship. To foster academic exchange, knowledge sharing, and collaboration in this field, the Asian Fisheries Society (AFS), in partnership with Nha Trang University (NTU), Shanghai Ocean University (SHOU), and the Ocean University of China (OUC), will convene the 8th International Symposium on Cage Aquaculture in Asia (CAA8) in Nha Trang, Khanh Hoa Province, Vietnam, from July 16-18, 2026.

The symposium will feature keynote lectures, plenary sessions, and parallel sessions covering major themes in cage and offshore aquaculture, including production systems, breeding and seed production, nutrition and feed, health and environmental management, carbon sequestration and biofouling, and socio-economic and policy issues.

Khanh Hoa, a beautiful coastal province in south central Vietnam, possesses unique advantages and conditions for the development of offshore and other forms of cage aquaculture. It is the province with the longest coastline (nearly 500 km) in Vietnam, and has sheltered bays and hundreds of islands, international deep-sea ports and airports. These attributes have made Khanh Hoa a leader of cage aquaculture in Vietnam. As the heart of Khanh Hoa, Nha Trang is growing as one of the top destinations in Vietnam for international tourism and events thanks to its natural assets, excellent services and vibrant lifestyle. Vietnam implements a visa-exemption policy for citizens from 29 countries, which greatly facilitates attendance at conferences and ensures convenience for participants.

The CAA8 co-organizer NTU is a long-standing public university in Vietnam with strength in marine sciences and fisheries for over 65 years. During its history, NTU has made remarkable achievements in fisheries and aquaculture in Vietnam, becoming one of the top institutions for international projects in research and training in the fisheries and aquaculture sectors. NTU, with its academic reputation and exclusive location is becoming known as a hub of international and national scientific events in Vietnam.

The main objective of the symposium is to review the current status of cage aquaculture, address critical challenges, and explore innovative solutions for its sustainable development. Although focusing on cage aquaculture, the symposium will also consider advances in the broader field of aquaculture and how they apply to cage culture. Through plenary and parallel sessions, CAA8 will focus on key themes including production systems, breeding and seed production, nutrition and feed, environmental sustainability and carbon dynamics, health and biosecurity, as well as socio-economics, livelihoods, and governance.

By bringing together scientists, researchers, industry professionals, policymakers, and students from Asia and the international community, the symposium seeks to promote cooperation and contribute to the sustainable growth of the cage aquaculture industry, ensuring its role in providing high-quality aquatic protein for future generations.

The Asian Fisheries Society aims to promote networking and cooperation among scientists, technicians, and all stakeholders involved in fisheries and aquaculture production, research, and development in the Asian region. The CAA8, jointly organized by AFS, NTU, and other co-organizers (Shanghai Ocean University and Ocean University of China) and sponsors, seeks to summarize the current status and experiences of cage aquaculture in Asia and worldwide. It will also address the challenges and future areas of development for enhancing the development of sustainable cage culture. The symposium aims to facilitate the upgrading and healthy rapid development of the cage aquaculture industry in Asia.

We cordially invite deans, experts, young scholars, representatives of aquaculture production-related enterprises, as well as doctoral and master's students from relevant institutions specializing in cage aquaculture in Vietnam and other Asian countries to attend the symposium.
